

Be a Hero for a Better World

"Taking a stand is a way of living and being that draws on a place within yourself that is at the very heart of who you are. When you take a stand, you find your place in the universe, and you have the capacity to move the world."

Lynne Twist (1945-)

Lynne Twist is an American social activist, author, fundraiser, speaker and counselor, who has raised millions of dollars for nonprofit organizations, and helps teach others how to fund their work for a better world. She has been involved in many social causes, including ending hunger, global sustainability, human rights, indigenous rights, empowering women and children and promoting spirituality.

Lynne Twist helped found The Hunger Project in 1977 and worked with it in an effort to end world hunger for more than 20 years. When indigenous peoples of the rainforest asked her to help save their homes and way of life she started the Pachamama Project with her husband, which works to "preserve the rainforests by empowering the indigenous peoples who are its natural custodians."

Following the publication of her book, The Soul of Money, Lynne Twist started the Soul of Money Institute, which is a "center for exploring and sharing the best practices, theories, and attitudes that enable people to relate to money and the money culture with greater freedom, power, and effectiveness."

Lynne Twist was born in 1945 in Chicago, Illinois
